MOOD: 😞 disappointed

Well, they kept Tasha's brother overnight for observation, but released him this morning. No lasting harm.

She emailed when she got home, with apologies. By now, if she did what she said, she should be catching up on sleep.

I'm glad he's okay.

And because the only think that provides more clarification than getting what you thought you wanted is not getting what you didn't think you wanted, it turns out I'm kind of sad I didn't get to see her last night, though chili and more Dangermouse made up for a lot. (and ace cub reportr (<https://ace-cub-reportr.livejournal.com/>)'s Penfold impersonation has to be seen to be believed.)

Daphs, how's the hand? Think you might be fixed enough to try the wall tomorrow? I noticed the tape was off....

sympathy

May I suggest letting her know that when she's ready, you'd like to try getting together again?

I think I'll try to talk to her the next time I see her at the gym. At least, mini-talk, leading up to Talk talk.

hugs Give her some time to sleep and process, and then see about rescheduling? Are you any closer to figuring out what you want?

Well, I know I don't want to string her along. So I think I need to find out what she thinks she wants.

Stringing along = definitely bad. nodnodnod Get to talk to her as soon as you can. The longer it goes, the harder it is.

Yeah. The last girl I dated--well, it didn't end badly. But that was mostly because she was too smart to stick around long enough to want the kind of promises I'm not in a position to make right now.

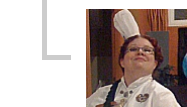

Cop's girlfriend/boyfriend/spouse: really not the job for everybody.

hugs That's rough. But there are people out there who can handle that. Just keep everything in the open. Communication is what makes things work, especially in a harder situation to deal with.

You are not stringing her along. She is pursuing you. There is a difference. But yes, talk to her, find out what she wants.

Hand is sorta fixed. Not really fixed-fixed.

What if I give it another week, but come belay you and hang out anyway?

You wish to parlay my guilt and gratitude into some eventual advantage/favor, don't you?

I mean, of course! That sounds great!

Eep. Assuming I live that long. I just got an IM from the Wabbit, who apparently was taking advantage of her holiday to sleep late. Transcribed:

Coffee. Out. Nose.

(And that's a lot of nose to coffeefy.)

Seriously, I can picture her like a cartoon character being marched to the firing line. With the eyes. 0.o

Hmm. Come and watch vs. go to bed. Come and watch vs. go to bed. Come and watch vs. go to bed.

Meet you guys for late lunch, then, and then I'll take the Harpy off your hands and get her some exercise?

Hah! Victory!

While you guys are shopping, Elmer and I will be making sourdough pretzels.

Which will be better than anything you would get at the mall.
